Dogwood Village resident Joella Bradshaw recently celebrated her 99th birthday with family and friends. Mrs. Bradshaw has lived in Orange County for many years where she and her husband raised 5 children. She worked for a local veterinarian Dr. H.Q. Tucker for more than 25 years and is the oldest member of Trinity United Methodist Church. Mrs. Bradshaw also enjoyed many years of service as a Hospice Volunteer with the Hospice of the Rapidan. Mrs. Bradshaw was especially thrilled with her birthday cake this year made of fresh flowers given to her by a good friend.

With change comes responsibility

In a move to mark the new year and a newer, better Culpeper Times, the paper will be going through a print redesign. It will debut in our next edition on March 3.

The redesign will feature a new front page, different color scheme and special sections.

Our front page may be one of the most noticeable changes as it has become a staple in the community. However, we believe that our new front page will garner just as much attention and become a better viewing and reading experience.

The front page also coincides with a fresher color scheme, also aimed at making the reader experience better.

While the Times used to feature special sections, we will now refocus on categorizing content into sections such as COVID-19 updates, history, health and even food. We want to bring more eclectic content to the paper so readers can read about different things they enjoy.

Readers may also notice a change in our opinions page, which will now be called "Voices." As much as we've appreciated our committed columnists through the years, we want to include more local voices and experiences on our Voices page. Readers should expect to see new faces and read different viewpoints on this page to spark discussions outside of the pages of the paper.

As some readers have noticed, we have already introduced a new aspect of our redesign on our page two. While this page was previously reserved for a local story, it now works as a roadmap for the paper. When readers first open the paper, they can see a spotlighted local story, an upcoming event, three teasers for what's inside and much more.

We felt this move gives readers a little more direction in what they'll find as they flip through.

In the end, this will be the last time you see Culpeper Times look the way it does. We welcome change, and hope our readers do too.

We're excited for everyone to see it, and hope they love it as much as we do.
